Uncle Buzzard are back with the brand new single 'Little Fish' on Monomyth Records. The Leeds based five piece continue to make waves in the local music scene with their unique brand of slightly off kilter and complex psych pop. 'Little Fish' follows on from the success of 'Big Cat' which was recently released as a double A side 7" on Come Play With Me Records. The guys are prolific writers and producers and are involved with an whole host of other emerging local talent such as Harry Hanson, Manny Bianco and Georges Legrand to name but a few.

'Little Fish is about not living up to the expectations we set ourselves, or those set by others. The song is about identity and about the labels and the expectations that are externally put upon us, addressing issues surrounding gender and sexuality. When these things are ambiguous to us, but we are categorised by others, we feel pressure to conform to those labels, and it's about that constant feeling of pressure that we must overcome to truly be ourselves'.

GM.

'THERE IS DEFINITELY INNOVATION IN UNCLE BUZZARD'S APPROACH; THEY ARE CLEARLY INTERESTED IN DOING SOMETHING DIFFERENT WITH A FAMILIAR SONIC PALETTE'.
