

PURPLE THREAD

Following on from the immense success of their previous release, PURPLE THREAD are set to return with their much anticipated follow up 'Easy Livin' - a synth fuelled headrush designed to be played loud. The band have continued to build on the explosive energy of their single "Gimme More" with their epic delivery due to be released on Monomyth Records on 5th August 2022. Cherry-picked from a forest of influences, the band delves deeper into their darker, more synthetic sound without sacrificing their characteristic edge. Taking influences from Bowie & Tame Impala and born out of the same quirky DNA of previous releases, Purple Thread continues to boast an array of inescapable earworms and irresistible swagger.

With razor-sharp guitars, blissed-out 80's synth, and a stomping singalong groove, 'Easy Livin' is a full-blooded arrangement that's primed for the dance floor. The song's themes are worn heavy on its sleeve: the fleeting innocence of youth, the agony and ecstasy of contemporary life, and yearning for the weekend.

Lead singer Liz Mann says; Easy Livin' picks up where our last single Gimme More left off. It talks about fast pleasures, the highs and lows of life, and the euphoric feeling of letting go of everything you thought mattered. 'Easy Livin' lingers on the bittersweet moments before releasing into a dancefloor epiphany of a higher dream. We've found a thread in our songs recently which we've been following down the rabbit hole. The idea that we live in a world where tomorrow is promised but never delivered.
