LUKA is a solo artist based in London and Leeds UK. With a distinctive voice and an authentic quirkiness in terms of production and songwriting, 'Waiting' is LUKA's third outing on Monomyth Records and is part of a wider body of work to be released in full later in 2021. Indie Midlands described LUKA's last release 'Past The Point Of No Return' in these wonderful words...

'You can imagine the track playing over top of a gritty period drama, as a Viking warrior looks back in melancholic regret, at the smouldering remains of the village he just burnt to the ground'.

'Waiting is a classic unrequited love song. You like someone who doesn't feel the same way and end up waiting for things to change, hoping that if you wait long enough, they might change their mind (they usually don't). In the end you realise you've wasted too much of your life pining after this one person and it's probably time to get over it and move on. I wrote this when I was in the middle of that sad "why don't they like me back" stage. Happy to say that I have since moved past being sad about that to just being stressed about the general world. A definite improvement'.

The production values have been turned up a notch on 'Waiting' whilst still holding on to the quirky trademark sonic attributes that LUKA fans have come to love. Twin Peaks flavoured guitar and mellotron strings punctuate the arrangement and help bring the whole affair to a satisfying conclusion.
